Concordia University, Montreal

Vol. 13 No. 8 October 27, 1988

Nine Concordia departments will participate in the 4th annual West Island Semaine des Sciences / Science Week sponsored by the federal, provincial and municipal governments and several private companies. Biology, the Centre for Building Studies, Chemistry, Geology, Computer Science, Exercise Science, Mechanical Engineering, Physics and Psychology will each have an exhibit at the exposition. As well, our Liaison Department will have a representative on hand to answer questions from West Island residents about Concordia science programs.

Last year, Concordia had over 40 different exhibits at the Semaine des Sciences, and this year promises to be just as fruitful for the University's scientific community.

The Semaine des Sciences will take place at Stewart Hall in Pointe Claire, 176 Lakeshore Drive, on Saturday and Sunday, November 5th and 6th., between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. on both days. There is no admission charge and everyone is welcome.

Journalists study Latin America, drugs

"Come to the ground-breaking"

- Patrick Kenniff

ector Patrick Kenniff has asked The Thursday Report to issue an invitation on his behalf to all faculty members, students and staff, particularly librarians and library staff, to join the Chancellor and other invited dignitaries at next Friday's (November 4th) 11:30 a.m. ground-breaking ceremony for the new downtown library complex.

Higher Education and Science Minister Claude Ryan will represent the Québec government, along with Concordia's downtown MNA, Jacques Chagnon (St-Louis), and officials from the City of Mont-

The event will be held in the parking lot opposite the Henry F. Hall Building (just behind the billboard dipicting the new library complex).

In addition to Chancellor Alan B. Gold, the Board of Governors and the members of Senate, the special guests will include major Capital Campaign donors, alumni members, and the presidents of faculty, student and staff associations.

Following the speeches outdoors, everyone present — faculty, students, staff, dignitaries and special guests, will all be invited back to the warmer confines of the Hall Building lobby, where the Chancellor will lead those assembled in a toast to Concordia.

Refreshments (a glass or two of bubbly, coffee or fruit juice) will be offered to all present, and will be available in the lobby to all members of the community as long as supplies

-KJW

With Québec government and City of Montréal building permits now in hand, plans are proceeding full speed ahead for the start of construction on the downtown library complex. Rector Patrick Kenniff (right) and Marcel Turcotte proudly display the documents shortly after they were delivered on Tuesday. Mr. Turcotte is Project Director for Hervé Pomerleau Inc, the general contracting firm chosen to build the library.

Annual Appeal launched in fine style

It rained, but more than 80 golfers turned out anyway to march down the links recently during the University's 6th Annual Alumni Golf Tournament. And more than 170 people turned out afterwards for the dinner and presentation, where Co-chairs Alexander J. Carpini (Loyola BA'74) and Diane Drury (Concordia BCom'83) handed over the day's proceeds to Maurice Cohen, Vice-Rector, Institutional Relations and Finance.

The money represents contributions toward the reinstated Annual Giving Program. The Program (not to be confused with the Capital Campaign, which has already raised more than $25 million primarily for library construction) funds such things as fellowships, scholarships, athletics projects, Rector's special initiatives and provides research seed money.

Though the cheque indicates $4,000, the final tally — after all the pledges are in — will be closer to $4,500.

RECTOR AND VICE-CHANCELLOR EVALUATION COMMITTEE

The Board of Governors has established an Evaluation Committee to assess the record of Dr. Patrick Kenniff and to consider whether to recommend his reappointment, for a second term, as Rector and Vice-Chancellor.

The Committee is required to make its recommendations in the light of the information presented to it. To this end, interested persons are invited to submit information or make statements in writing to the Committee, no later than 17:00, 4 November 1988.

Those wishing to submit such statements should be aware that the incumbent will be given the opportunity to respond to any relevant comments or criticisms. Subject to this requirement, the proceedings of the Committee and its discussions are confidential.

Statements, marked "Confidential," should be forwarded to:

India focus of new Concordia initiative

by Ken Whittingham

four-member Concordia delegation is in India this week to promote academic exchanges with six Indian universities.

Maurice Cohen, Vice-Rector, Institutional Relations and Finance, Engineering and Computer Science Dean M. N. S. Swamy, Arts and Science Dean Charles Bertrand, and Martin Singer, Director of the Council for International Co-operation, will visit universities in Bombay, Bangalore, Madras, Delhi and Roorkee.

The 13-day trip was paid for by the Québec Ministry of International Relations, which is seeking ways to promote greater economic and academic links with the Indian subcontinent.

During a stopover in London last week the group met with Québec's Delegate-General, Reed Scowen, and with representatives of the British Council. Prior to his London posting Scowen was one of Concordia's two representatives in the National Assembly. He sat for many years as the MNA for N.D.G. riding, which includes the west-end campus.

The British Council meeting was arranged at his request to consider the possibility of more formal linkages between Concordia and universities in Great Britain.

Numerous disciplines

The six Indian universities selected for exchanges are the Indian Institute of Technology (Bombay), the Institute of Marketing and Management (also in Bombay) the Indian Institute of Science (Bangalore), the Indian Institute of Technology (Madras), the Indian Institute of Technology (Delhi), and the University of Roorkee (Roorkee).

The Concordia representatives will investigate co-operative ventures in numerous disciplines. At the Indian Institute of Science, for example, they will focus on possible exchanges in biology, chemistry, electrical engineering and computer science.

At the IIT in Madras they will consider joint ventures in mechanical engineering, materials analysis and educational technology.

Next Thursday the Concordia delegation will also attend a reception hosted by Canada's High Commissioner to India, James Harris, and by Indian government education officials.

The idea for the India trip originated last May at an international meeting that Singer and former Vice-Rector (Academic) Francis Whyte attended in Calgary.

Co-sponsored by External Affairs Minister Joe Clark and Indian High Commissioner to Canada Shri K. Natwar Singh, the Canada / India Opportunities Conference was held to find ways to encourage scientific, technological and educational links between the two countries.

Equilibrium sought

In an interview just before he left, Singer told TTR that Concordia already has substantial links with Indian educational institutions. "Our academics are travelling back and forth all the time."

But like the case two years ago with Concordia's overtures to The People's Republic of China, Singer said that "this trip will provide us with an opportunity to consolidate those contacts, obtain government funding that we are not currently receiving and promote even more travel between the two countries."

Singer said the federal and provincial governments are both very supportive of Concordia's India initiative. India is one of the largest single recipients of Canadian international development aid, and both levels of government are anxious to develop links that could help to develop more of an equilibrium in trade, cultural and educational contacts.

• An upcoming issue of TTR will feature a story on a $2.5 million joint agreement involving the Faculty of Commerce and Administration and China's Tianjin University.

Northern research help available

Northern Scientific Training Program aid covers airfare and a $30 per diem living allowance

Last year's award recipient spent his Christmas break studying the views on higher education of high school dropouts in Labrador.

by Carol Krenz

I f you happen to be a final year undergraduate or graduate student interested in doing research in the North, then you'll want to know that funds are available for travel costs and for a part of your daily expenses. All you have to do is prepare a planned proposal and turn it into Professor Ronald McKay, the Chair of Concordia's Committee for Northern Studies, TESL Centre Reception Area, 2130 Bishop Street, on or before November 4th.

Concordia's Committee for Northern Studies has been accessing funds from the Federal Northern Scientific Training Program (NSTP) and passing them along to suitable applicants in an effort to engender more interest in northern Québec, Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia as well as the Yukon and Northwest Territories. The federal funding program has been in existence since 1961, although — as its name implies grants used to be given out for pure scientific research alone. Gradually, all branches of research which include studies in Music, Literature and Education were included along with subjects like Biology, etc. A recent example of the NSTP's scope is last year's award recipient — a TESL undergraduate who spent last Christmas and New Year's studying the views on education of high school dropouts in Labrador.

'If you meet the basic criteria for the grant, funds are relatively easy to obtain'

The planned proposals which students must submit need to include clearly defined projects, a detailed budget and time-frame and the name of the University faculty member who will act as supervisor.

It is recommended that the funds be regarded as a secondary source of funding as they allow only $30 per day in living expenses — a small amount in the North — in addition to airfare. McKay points out, however, that there are research stations in the North which will house researchers at minimal cost

Before you pack for Whitehorse, however, there is one more detail to be addressed: You can not qualify at all unless you are a Canadian citizen or landed immigrant. Check the 1989-90 NSTP Guidelines, which are available at the TESL Centre as well.

Aside from McKay, Committee members include Gail Valaskakis (Communications), Paul Widden (Biology), and Richard Diubaldo (History).

Providing you are able to meet the basic criteria for the grant, it is said that funds are relatively easy to obtain. The Canadian North is still a large, undeveloped source of natural resources and material. Studies taking place there can be as varied as anywhere else, albeit a little more colourful — from environmental science to the particular bitonal throat singing of the Inuit.

How to Get Books From Vanier's (Temporarily) Closed Stacks

The books with call numbers from HI to Z, which were formerly located on the basement floor of the Vanier Library, were moved into the new Vanier extension at the end of the summer. The subjects covered by books in this part of the collection include sociology, political science, education, music, theatre, film, literature, and library studies. Because the extension is still under construction, students cannot go onto the construction site to get the books they want off the shelves. To assist library users in getting books from this part of the Vanier collection, a "paging" system has been in operation since September.

To get a book that is in the Vanier closed stacks, follow these simple steps:

1. Fill out the 2-part retrieval form available at the Reference Desk and the Circulation Desk in the Vanier Library.

2. Hand in the form at the Vanier Circulation Desk. You keep one part of the form.

3. Check back at the Circulation Desk after 10-15 minutes for your book. Hand in your part of the retrieval form to identify which book you asked for.

That's all there is to it! Vanier staff retrieve the books you have requested as quickly as possible, on average within about 15 minutes.

Once the move into the new Vanier extension is completed later this term, all library materials will once again be directly accessible by library users.

Attention Geography Students

Geographical Abstracts (formerly Geo Abstracts) is now available for computer searching as the database, GEOBASE. Also included in this database are references from International Development Abstracts and Ecological Abstracts. GEOBASE covers worldwide literature (from 1980 to the present) on subjects such as cartography, ecology, economic geography, environment, natural resources, regional studies, remote sensing, rural geography, social geography, transportation, urban geography, etc.

Ten dollars will get you up to 50 cita-

If you are having trouble finding material for your geography paper and if you are interested in a computer search, please get in touch with Marvin Orbach (Geography Librarian) at 848-7763.

Validate Your ID Card

Every year the library staff must turn students away from the Circulation Desks because they either have no ID cards or their ID cards are not validated. ID cards are issued and validation takes place during registration. If you have missed this step it's not too late for you.

New ID cards can be obtained at the Registrar's Office (N-107, AD-211) on Tuesdays and Wednesdays between 2:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. all year. A current contract proving your status as a Concordia student must be presented in order to obtain one.

Validation of old ID cards can be obtained anytime the Registrar's Office is open — again upon presentation of the contract.

Remember the only way to borrow library material (including Reserves) is to present a valid ID card. The ID card has your picture and proof of enrolment at Concordia. A contract alone will not suffice

Dust in the Wind

The following bit of library trivia comes from the Library Journal of June 15, 1988.

Ever wonder what library dust is made of? A chemical analysis of the dust in the stacks of the New York Public Library yielded the following interesting if unsurprising results: 25 percent textile fibres (mostly cotton, polyester, and blue-dyed cotton thread — see all those stack folk in blue jeans?); 24% minerals, in this case calcite, quartz, and feldspar from the library marble; 16 percent oil soot, mostly from oil combustion; and 34 percent biological components, most of which (28% are paper fibres. The slow fires imagery of a book crumbling to dust comes to analytical reality here.

Clarification Non-Print Hours

There is a slight difference in the Library hours for the Non-Print Units as they appear in the Library Owners Manual and as they appear on the posted Library Hours. The posted hours are correct and are reproduced here to further publicize them:

Keeping Informed

"Library News" is a four-time-a-year feature prepared for The Thursday Report by Concordia Librarians. "Library News" gives you a chance to keep up-to-date with the latest developments in the Concordia Libraries. Statistics Seekers

The Statistics Canada Catalogue 1987-88 is now available. It lists the (numbered) documents published from 1987 to March 1988, as well as the publications of the 1981 and 1976 Censuses. It contains a title, subject, commodity, and personal name index which offers many points of access to the various publications dealing with:

Primary industries; Manufacturing; Transportation, communications and utilities; Commerce, construction, finance and prices; Employment, unemployment and labour income; and Education, culture, health and welfare.

This new edition is available in the Government Publications and Microforms Unit, 5th floor, Norris Library and at the Reference Desk, Vanier Library.

Drummond Science is still open

Due to unavoidable delays in the completion of the extension to the Vanier Library, the move of the Drummond Science Library and the existing Vanier Library into the new Vanier extension has not yet taken place. Both libraries are open for business as usual until further notice. Library hours are posted at the entrances of each of Concordia's libraries.

Information on Current Topics

The Research Branch of the Library of Parliament in Ottawa is publishing two new interesting and informative series:

The Current Issue Review (CIR) series consists of concise descriptive commentaries on topical issues. Each CIR contains a discussion of the issue, a chronology of events, details of the action taken in Parliament and a select reading list. Each paper is updated regularly. Some examples of CIR include: Acid rain; Political change North of 60; Abortion: legal aspects; Affirmative action/Employment equity; Canadian multiculturalism: issues and trends.

The Backgrounder series has lengthier studies on subjects of interest such as: Canadian defence policy; Canada-U.S. Free Trade Agreement; Federal government spending — changing trends; Regulation of financial institutions: recent proposals for reform; Hazardous waste management in Canada.

These two series can be found in the Government Publications and Microforms Unit, 5th floor of the Norris Library and in the Government Publications Area, 3rd floor of the Vanier Library.

PsycLIT Demos

From October 24 to December 1, 1988, there will be group demonstrations of the PsycLIT system (Psychological Abstracts on CD-ROM) every Wednesday from 1:00 to 2:00 p.m. and Thursday from 10:00 to 11:00 a.m. in the Vanier Library.

The sessions will last approximately one hour and will cover strategy techniques as well as the system's most used commands.

Groups are limited to 5 people each, therefore, please call 848-7774 to reserve your place.

Distressed Piggy Saved by Big Screen!

Occasionally a computerized database search results in articles which are not exactly what was expected. In a recent search done for an exercise science student, the topic was "Use of Cinematography in the Study of Gait." The following article was retrieved:

TI: Footing and gait of pigs on different concrete surfaces.

SO: Journal of Animal Science, 1988 Feb. 66(2), p. 334-41.

AB: Because pigs frequently lose their footing and slip, it is important to understand slipping and its relation to different floor surfaces. An experiment was conducted to evaluate the gait and footing of young pigs walking on concrete floor surfaces having known friction characteristics and to determine critical skid resistance values in terms of the fitness of a concrete surface for flooring in pig quarters. Cinematography was used for the motion studies...

Math Journals at Vanier Library

Thirty-one mathematics journals formerly at the Science and Engineering Library have changed campuses and are now at Vanier Library.

If you find that a math journal is no longer in its familiar place on the SEL periodicals shelves, check with the reference librarian on duty as it may be one of the transferred journals.

Our microfiche Serials List, the alphabetical list of Concordia's serials which gives library locations and holdings for each title, has not yet been updated for all of the transferred titles. Doublechecking a location for a math journal before you make a special trip to the other campus could save you inconvenience. Call numbers for the journals will not have changed and will be on the Serials List. All but one title will be in the QA section of Vanier's periodicals area. The lone exception is Journal of Mathematical Biology which is classified under a QH designation.

Faculty and students on the Loyola campus will benefit from having these research-oriented journals at Vanier. For those on SGW campus, remember that bound volumes of periodicals can be sent from Loyola on inter-campus delivery (expect to wait a few days). Current periodicals, however, must be consulted at the library which has the current subscription.

Arts and Humanities Search

Arts and Humanities Search is a comprehensive, multidisciplinary index of the arts and humanities, and corresponds to the printed publication Arts and Humanities Citation Index. It offers the unique feature of cited reference searching, which allows you to search the bibliography of any article that includes references to creative works, artists, composers, illustrations and musical scores. Citation searching allows you to use previously published works of relevance to a particular topic to locate current articles on that same topic.

You can also search the names of past and current authorities known to have written books and articles about a subject. It is possible to search by cited authors (artists, composers, etc.), cited references, or cited works (novels, paintings, music scores, etc.).

Arts and Humanities Search covers 1,300 leading journals in the following fields: architecture, art, classics, dance, film, television and radio, folklore, history, language, linguistics, literature, music, philosophy, theatre, and theology and religious studies. It includes citations to articles, poetry, short stories, music scores, filmographies, scripts, etc., as well as indexing more than 50,000 book reviews each year. In addition, it indexes reviews of bibliographies, films, records, art exhibits, television and radio programs, and dance, music, and theatrical performances.

If you feel you might benefit from a search done on this database, contact your Subject Librarian.

Drug wars

Sgt. Detective Richard Dickens, RCMP head of criminal operations in Ontario, came to Concordia to "challenge the media to define its role" in the drug war. He said it could not turn its back on its role as an educator and must decide how to fulfill this mandate.

He does not mind the news media criticizing the police when they are wrong, but he says they should support its actions by raising public awareness about drugs.

Technicians, University near agreement

Negotiations continued last Friday between representatives for Concordia's 110 technicians and the University administration

Chief negotiator for the Technicians Union is Kai Lee, president of the union, while the University is represented by Susan O'Reilly, Director of Human Resources.

While O'Reilly cautions that given the University's large accumulated deficit it just cannot afford to give the technicians the raise of several thousand dollars a year they are asking for, she is optimistic that a settlement is imminent.

"The negotiations went very well," she told TTR. "We deposited a new salary proposal and their initial reaction was, at least, not negative."

Kai Lee is also optimistic. "The feeling is quite positive; we feel we're close to the end. he told TTR. "Of course we have to examine the proposal to see just exactly how our technicians will benefit, but in principle in seems to be okay.'

The next meeting is scheduled for November 4, when the union will give its reaction to the new proposal.

The Technicians Union, which was founded in April 1987, is affiliated with the CSN. When a settlement is reached it will be the union's first contract with the Univer-awarded a grant by the Ministère de l'Enseignement supérieur et de la Science for the development and implementation of an Employment Equity program (program d'accès à l'égalité). As Co-ordinator, I would like to bring you up-to-date with what is happening and planned for the upcoming year. The diagnostic report is scheduled to be finished in April with a period of consultation later in the spring, after which a plan of action will be developed.

Employment Equity Update

Last January and February, a Consultative Committee on Employment Equity was set up to ensure the participation of all members of the University community in the formulation of goals and the devising of regulations for the Employment Equity program. Members of this committee are: Janice Flood Turner (CUPFA), Gabriella Hochmann (CUFA Librarians), Larry Jefferies (Physical Plant), Elizabeth Morey (Status of Women), O'Reilly (Human Resources), Kathleen Perry (Employment Equity), Hal Proppe (Institutional Relations and Finance), Marilyn Taylor (CUFA Faculty), Rosalie Taylor (NUSGWUE), and Pat Verret (CUNASA).

This picture will serve to identify problems of under-representation, underutilization and concentration of women in a range of jobs (are there pink ghettos?). This analysis will provide a base line from which progress can be measured. Work is also continuing on the availability analysis for all job categories to determine if women truly are underrepresented (that is, are there qualified women for these posi-

2. A comparison of these policies with actual employment practices to see if they differentially affect women and men (Are there glass ceilings?); and

To the Editor:

It is my great pleasure to write to you. I expect you will be pleased to accept my appeal regarding overseas penpals for our students.

I am an English teacher in a noted high school in Seoul, Korea. This school has about 2,500 students of both sexes. I am eagerly seeking foreign students who would like to correspond with our students. There are many Korean students who want to exchange letters and friendship with foreign penfriends, and they frequently ask that I let them (sic) have foreign penfriends.

Throughout my foreign language teaching career, I've noticed that this would help not only their English and emotional life, but also expand their knowledge of foreign lands. This would also promote worldwide friendship and mutual relationships as well as serving as a true foundation of world peace.

I feel it is necessary to publish this simple wish among the boys and girls (sic) of the world. Therefore, I courteously request you to run this letter in a corner of your valu-

The only information I need of a student is his or her name, address, age, sex, hobbies and picture if possible. I expect to receive many letters from your readers wishing to correspond with our students (groups or class letters welcome).

I will appreciate it very much if you let me have the chance to do this for my students. This would be a warm and thoughtful favour. Awaiting good news, I remain.

Yours sincerely, Miss Park Myeong Shim C.P.O. Box 3315 Seoul 100-633
